

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE:

Description: Education/Community Interest Story

Daniel Boone High School Student wins 2017 First Congressional Art Contest

Daniel Boone's Chloe Cox was awarded First Place in the 2017 First Congressional Art Contest at Tusculum College on April 24 for her color pencil drawing, "Self-Portrait 2017." Her work will be professionally framed and on exhibit in the tunnel between the United States Capitol and the Cannon House Office Building for the next year, beginning with a reception ceremony in early June.

Daniel Boone was also represented with artwork entries from Jessica Beaver, Brooke Beaver, Izabel Avila, Maison Harwell, and Natalie Chandler.

Daniel Boone students have now won the contest five of the last six years.

Daniel Boone Art Teacher Mr. Robb Houser was also recognized as the First Congressional District Art Teacher of the Year for the fifth time.

Congressman Phil Rowe and Chloe Cox with her First Place drawing, "Self-Portrait 2017"